WESTMINSTER ABBEY

Something About This World Famous Old English Church.

The architecture of Westminster abbey dates back to a remote period, but long before any part of the present "glorious pile" was in existence a Saxon church stood upon the same spot. Many years before the conquest the Saxon church was connected with a monastic body of the Benedictine order, which gave the name Western monastery, or Westminster, to its place of abode, to distinguish it from St. Paul's, in London, which was known as East Minister.

Considered architecturally, the first church here of which we have any authentic history was erected by Edward the Confessor and consecrated on Holy Innocent's day, 1065. The greater part of the abbey was built by Henry III in the style known as early English. The west front, with its grandly beautiful windows, belongs to the fifteenth century, as does also the completion of the nave and the aisles. The extreme length of Westminster abbey is 511 feet, the width across the transepts is 203 feet and the width across the aisles 79 feet; the height of the roof is 109 feet.

The fortunes of the abbey have followed and are closely interwoven with those of the nation, and many, therefore, are its historical associations. There the sovereigns of England have been crowned ever since the conquest. The coronation stone, brought from Scotland by Edward I, may still be seen under the coronation chair used by Richard II. This chair has ever since been occupied by English rulers during the coronation ceremonies.

Within the walls of the abbey the funerals of many crowned heads have taken place, and sovereigns and members of royal families have graves and tombs beneath its roof. Oliver Cromwell never wore a crown, but his remains were deposited for a time in a vault beneath Henry VII's chapel with pomp never surpassed by that of royalty.

The south transept is known to the world as the "poets' corner," because there, sleeping their last sleep, are Chaucer, Spenser, Ben Jonson, Cowley, Dryden, Beaumont, Addison and Tennyson and near by are monuments to Shakespeare, Milton, Isaac Watts, Goldsmith and Johnson.

In the north transept are buried many renowned statesmen. There lie Pitt, Wilberforce, Fox, Peel, Canning and Palmerston. Many eminent divines, men of letters, generals, admirals and other persons known to fame are buried beneath the marble pavement or have monuments by its pillars or on its historic walls.—Philadelphia Times

SLEIGHBELLS.

As Commonly Used as Ever—Some Changes In Customs.

The sleighbells used in this country are made here, most of them in Connecticut, and many sleighbells of American manufacture are exported to Germany and to Russia. Sleighbells are as commonly used as ever whenever there is snow enough to make good sleighing. They may not be heard so much as formerly here in the city, where the snow is cleared away from many streets and wheels cut up what is left, but up the state and elsewhere the sleighbells jangle in winter just as merrily as ever.

There have been some changes in sleighbell customs. Shaft bells and bells fixed on the saddle of the harness have to some extent taken the place of the old time string of bells on straps, but the strings of bells are still the more commonly used. Probably a third of the bell outfits sold nowadays are of the kind that fasten to shafts or the saddle of the harness and two-thirds are strings of bells. The bells exported are in about the same proportions. The bells attached to shafts and harness are open mouthed and provided with tongues. Some shaft bells are made with all three in a set alike; oftener they are made in three sizes, forming a chime. The three bells carried over the saddle of the harness are set in an ornamental frame, which is supported by the saddle.

The sleighbells of the old, familiar kind, round, with bells inside, are attached to straps, as they have always been, to both straps encircling the horse's body, and to neck straps.

Sleighbells are made of bell metal, and they were never made with such care with a view to their sound producing qualities, nor were they ever so musical, as now. The commoner kinds of sleighbells are produced at a very small cost, and whole strings of bells are sold at prices that seem amazingly low. Shaft bells of the commoner kinds are cheaper yet, and that accounts in some measure for the increased sales of shaft bells.

The question has often been asked, and as often answered, How does the ball get inside of the sleighbell? The question is here again answered. Of course the ball itself is first cast. It is then placed inside the ball of sand that is to form the core of the mold in which the sleighbell is to be cast. The mold is of the form and size of the outside of the sleighbell. The core almost fills the interior of the mold, but not quite. There is left all around, between it and the mold, a little space. Into this space the molten metal is poured, and when it hardens it is a hollow globe of metal, with the mold outside and the core inside. When the sleighbell is taken from the mold, the sand of which the core is composed, having been dried out by the heat of the molten metal, can easily be shaken out of the bell through its narrow mouth, but the ball which has been placed in the sand before the bell was cast is bigger than the mouth of the bell that now surrounds it, and so it has to stay in.—New York Sun.

Can't Raise the Wind.
Dixon—Young Softloigh doesn't seem to be traveling at such a rapid gait as formerly.

Hixon—No, he punctured the tire on his wheel of fortune.—Chicago News.

At this moment thousands of men are standing at the cross-roads of life. Death in the guise of a foolish ambition coaxes them to take one road, while health and happiness in the form of wife and babies coax them to take the other. For the sake of a few added dollars will they continue to over-work and neglect the commonest precautions for the preservation of health, or will they listen to love and reason and draw back before it is too late? A man may do almost any amount of good, hard work if he will take care of his health and when he feels out of sorts will take the right remedy.

The great blood-maker, flesh-builder and nerve tonic is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is the hard-workers' medicine. It corrects all disorders of the digestion, invigorates the liver, purifies the blood and tones and steadies the nerves. It makes the appetite hearty and brings refreshing sleep. Thousands of hard-workers owe their lives to it and have said so over their signatures. Druggists all sell it and all substitutes are frauds.

"I was taken with erysipelas in my hands and went to the doctor," writes Mrs. Lena Baumgartner, of Joy, Charlevoix Co., Mich. "He said he could not cure me. He gave me medicine to ease me but the disease spread all over my body. I took two bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and two of the 'Favorite Prescription' and am entirely cured. I have a boy three weeks old. I was helpless two or three months before confinement, but after taking the 'Favorite Prescription' I was able to do my washing three days before I was confined."

There is scarcely a known form of ill-health that constipation will not cause or aggravate. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are an unfailing cure for constipation. One little "Pellet" is a gentle laxative.

MRS. HARTLEY CAUSES A SENSATION.
She Rises in Emmanuel Church and Proclaims Durrant's Innocence.
The San Francisco Chronicle of Monday publishes the details of a scene that took place in Emmanuel Church during the services on Sunday evening in which Mrs. Alice M. Hartley was the principal. The first act in the melodrama took place in the body of the church when Mrs. Hartley arose and in a dramatic style asked to be heard. Pastor Gibson replied that if she wished to speak on religious matters she could have the privilege. She claimed to have a message from God. The doctor believing that the woman was madly excited commanded her to sit down and she obeyed. At the after meeting just as the services closed Mrs. Hartley rushed to the platform and demanded to be heard. A. B. Vogel seized her by the arm and led her to the sidewalk, she in the meantime insisting that she had received a vision from God that Theodore Durrant was innocent. At this time she was unknown to anyone in the church.
After reaching the sidewalk Mrs. Hartley was surrounded by a crowd and replied to various questions in a dignified and quiet manner and her identity was discovered. She then asked the crowd to disperse and permit her to go home unaccompanied. No attempt was made to arrest her and she left the church steps quietly and walked up Twenty-third street. After going some distance another crowd surrounded her, and here she related the circumstances of the shooting of Senator Foley, the trial, her imprisonment and the birth and death of her child. She said she had not intended to make a scene in the church, but had a duty to perform and felt that a benediction had fallen upon her. She then evaded the crowd and disappeared.
Many believe that she took the opportunity, considering the church, the pastor and the present situation of Durrant to make a scene that would give her a wide notoriety and that the whole performance had been carefully rehearsed. Others think that the play was one of Daprey's sensations that he had promised to spring and that it had been planned and Mrs. Hartley was selected by the attorney to carry it out. Of course this is purely speculative, but Louis Boardman, formerly of Reno, is one of Durrant's attorneys and his knowledge of her life in Reno might have suggested to him that she could be utilized as a sensational development in the case and Mrs. Hartley in turn would receive the prominent newspaper notoriety which she seems so anxious to obtain at any cost.
Commemorating The Landing of The Pilgrims.
On Sunday night a special service was held in the Congregational Church, to commemorate the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers at Plymouth. There was a very large audience and interesting music was rendered by an augmented choir.
Rev. F. Flawith spoke briefly, taking for his text, "And thou shalt show thy son in that day, saying, This is done because of that which the Lord did unto me." Exod. XIII:8.
"And because of what God has done for us," said the speaker, "through the sacrifice and faith of the Pilgrim Fathers, we commemorate their landing on the Atlantic coast of this continent, nearly three hundred years ago. Our memory needs to be verified on these matters. And it is well that others than Congregationalists can sanctify such an hour as this by religious recollection and consecration. Catholic and Protestant alike can well sing, 'Land of the Pilgrims' Pride.' No class of people can have a monopoly of the blessings derived from the faithfulness of those few exiled Congregationalists.
With a sort of vanity and pride we are wont to compare our present age with those long since gone by.
In a measure we are justified; but we must not forget, that no age, including the one in which we live, has yet represented all the virtues equally well. We have no excuse for the religious intolerance of the past. The curse of the seventh century was over zeal for Dogmatic Religion, intensified by an unenlightened conscience. And the curse of the present day is indifference to Dogmatic religion or any religion at all though we often claim more of an enlightened conscience. If there is to be any excuse at all, it must be given to those of the seventh century, for there was sincerity in their intolerance.
The greatest ultimate danger and enemy to a nation is a spirit of indifference to the vital principles of civilization and a nations life. The intolerance of license needs to be feared as much as the intolerance of narrow minded sincerity.
The religion of the Pilgrims was the rule of their life, whilst, too often it is our exception.
We are debtors to those brave men and women who laid the foundations of a new nation with solid blocks of christian truths. The permanence of society can always be attributed to the heroic faith of religious men. The world owes little or nothing, directly, to the irreligious multitude.
Nations and people have always been established safely on the perpetuation of religious morals, never on dreamy aesthetics.
A want of faith in the God of the Pilgrims, speedily tends to make cowards of the people, and lack of reverence for sacred things makes men indifferent to the fate and suffering of their fellow men.
Our fore fathers were Christians. I ask you if we are wiser than they, that we can afford to set aside their noble examples? There are many things we can improve on in these days, but, are you sure we can improve upon their worship of the God of Heaven?

Noble men of old and the noblest men of to-day couldn't and cannot live properly without God, therefore it is reasonable to ask ourselves whether we can safely dare to be a Godless people?
Tennessee's Pardner.
The theatre going public of Reno has had something too much of melodrama in times past not of the old fashioned article which was a respectable and reputable species of stage performance in which actors of ability found congenial employment, but of the so-called melodrama of the later growth, with tornadoes, fast mails, dynamite explosions and sudden death by practicable elevators and cotton presses to take the place of intelligible acting and intelligent dialogue. When therefore a play called, "Tennessee's Pardner" was announced last season, little enthusiasm was shown at first, and those who knew Mr. Arthur C. Aiston's reputation as a manager of high class attractions feared that in this venture he had suffered himself to be identified with something unworthy of his past record. The people, however, who witnessed the presentation of this play last year, found reason to revise any harsh judgement they may have formed in advance, for the most exciting of them discovered its merits, and went home delighted. "Tennessee's Pardner" is a drama of a high order, complete as to plot and story, delicate and natural as to incident, actions and climax. It contains unusually well managed love scenes, and enough rich, pure, and wholesome comedy to balance effectually the lesser quantity of heavy villainy. The interest in this play will be enhanced by the fact of its scenes taking place in this vicinity and Carson. The characters are familiar ones and the surroundings will be recognized. The attraction is booked for next Saturday evening Dec. 18th.
Condition of the Injured Men.
Mr. J. M. Eagle, Superintendent of the Sierra Valley Railroad, came in from the north last evening. He reports the affair at Vinton a terrible affair. Mr. Lompoy, the proprietor of the saloon (not the Vinton Hotel as first reported) was still alive, but no hope is entertained for his recovery. Albert Roberti, who attempted to stop the trouble and who was so badly slashed with a knife in the hands of Jones, is in a dangerous condition. He is an employee of Walter Ede.
J. Canevascini, who was hit by a stray bullet, suffered a serious wound, the ball striking in the calf of the leg and tearing through the flesh to the ankle joint, where it was cut out. The wound is not considered dangerous, but is very painful.
Jones had not been arrested up to yesterday afternoon and is supposed to be in the neighborhood of Chat. The delay of the officers in acting in the matter is not thoroughly understood. The young man who was with Jones at the time of the trouble was Ed. Lent and is well known in Reno.

Take Care of yourself.

Think deliberately of the house you live in—your body. Make up your mind firmly not to abuse it. Eat nothing that will hurt it. Wear nothing that distorts or pains it. Do not overload it with victuals or drink or work. Give yourself regular and abundant sleep. Keep your body warmly clad. Do not take cold; guard yourself against it. If you feel the first symptoms, give yourself heroic treatment. Get into a fine glow of heat by exercise. This is the only body you will have in this world. Study deeply and diligently the structure of it, the laws that govern it, the pains and penalty that will follow a violation of every law of life and health.—Medical Reporter.

GALLANTRY LANGUISHING!

Observations on the Decline of Street Car Manners in the South.

It cannot be concealed that there is a growing tendency, even in the south, where masculine gallantry has held out longest, on the part of men to let women in the street cars shift for themselves. It has not come to that point yet, but the movement is growing in that direction.

It is a fact that men are rapidly failing in the courtesy which was once uniformly shown to women, and the reason, to a large extent, is that men are meeting women as competitors in all fields of labor, and this fact, vastly changes the social relations between the sexes. Women are claiming all sorts of equality with men, moral, political and physical, and are declaring more and more their independence. The effect on the next generation will be very marked and peculiar. The men and women of the present are affected to an overpowering extent by the influence of old ideas and training, and that is the reason they talk about street car manners and social ethics in their relations to the sexes, but in the year 1930, or the period of one generation from the present time, people will no longer concern themselves about such matters.

The greater number of women at work in proportion to the men the more stringent the competition, and it can easily be seen that, according to the figures shown, the day might come when there would be no street car manners, but every individual would look out for himself or herself, as the case may be. But even should chivalry be extinguished from human manners there will always remain the Christian grace of civility, so in the time to come abled-bodied young men and women who have seats in the cars will rise to give their places to old men and women and to others who may be sick or disabled.
